Minister visits local schools

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

BACK TO SCHOOL: Ontario's Minister of Education Sean Conway, left, and Victoria-Haliburton MPP John Eakins were given a tour of local schools last Friday by representatives of the Haliburton County Board of Education. The aim of the tour was to show Conway the overcrowded conditions in the two villages.

Education Minister Sean Conway toured schools in Haliburton and Minden villages on Friday and although he offered no promises of funding to ease overcrowding, local officials have described the meeting as "promising."

Conway was accompanied on his visit by representatives of the Haliburton County Board of Education and Victoria-Haliburton MPP John Eakins, who arranged to bring Conway to the area.

After seeing conditions at Archie Stouffer, the Victoria Street school, and J.D. Hodgson, Conway met with some of the trustees at the board office in Haliburton village.

"I'm very, very interested in seeing what we can do," Conway said. But he said he wasn't in a position to make any commitments to the board. "I said I would come, look and listen, and I've done that," he said.

The trustees, teachers and administration made a "good case" about what short and intermediate-term solutions are needed to ease the accommodation situation facing the two villages, and the capital allocation needed to fund the proposals, said Conway.

He promised to "look seriously at trying to address the need." Before any solutions can be arrived at, Conway said there are still certain issues to be resolved

Sawmill owners aim for fall startup

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The new owners of G.W. Martin's sawmill in Harcourt hope to have the plant operating at full capacity by the fall.

Robert Bury and Company have met all the necessary conditions to buy Martin mill, and all that is now needed is Ministry of Natural Resources approval to transfer the timber rights to the new owners.

In an interview from his Montreal office on Friday, Robert Bury president William Caine told The Times that his company intends to operate the Harcourt mill similarly to the way it was operated by Martin.

The major difference, says Caine, is in the way the products will be marketed.

Robert Bury operates 12 warehouses across Canada and serves 5,000 customers. Caine says the company wants to establish Harcourt as a central distribution point for kiln-dried lumber products. To that end, the company intends to expand the kiln operation at the mill.

Caine said the company wants to run two shifts at the Harcourt operation, providing they can find enough lumber to keep the mill busy.

Robert Bury has been in operation for more than 90 years and deals mainly in the distribution of hardwood products.

They employ 1100 people and last year the company had gross sales of $150 million. They import lumber from Brazil, and the Soviet Union and export their products to the United States, the Orient and the Middle East.

It is affiliated with Commonwealth Plywood Co. Ltd., Canada's largest supplier of hardwood veneer. Caine says the two are "sister companies" that operate independently of one another and even

Conway's visit a fact-finding mission

Local officials are optimistic although no new capital funds have been offered and decisions for the local trustees to make.

He described his visit to the schools as a "fact-finding mission" and said his "data base is much more strong."

Conway said he will be meeting with ministry officials when he gets back to Queen's Park and will be in touch with the board of education "in the not-to-distant future."

Although he expressed an interest in some of the options the board is pursuing to provide additional classroom space in the county, Conway said "the ministry's capital allocation isn't as plentiful as the demands on it."

"I don't want to raise undue expectations," said Conway. But being from rural Ontario he said he's "personally sensitive" to some of the problems faced by Haliburton.

The board has asked Conway to consider giving assistance to two issues involving school accommodation.

The first request is to relax a ministry policy which may affect the board's ability to receive funding to relocate students from classrooms at the Lakeview site.

Under the ministry policy, boards which are allowed to sell school property where classes are being taught, must sign a release guaranteeing that they will not ask for capital grants to replace those classroom spaces for at least 10 years.

The Haliburton County Board of Education's position is that because the board has rented the Lakeview site to Sir Sandford Fleming College for the past 10 years, it should not be considered an elementary school.

The Lakeview site was closed as a school in the early 1970's and classes are being taught there now under an agreement with the college.

The board has recently announced its intention to sell Lakeview to the college for $390,000.

The second request to Conway is for capital funding to help finance construction of additional classroom space in Haliburton and Minden villages.

The board is considering building two, new Kindergarten to Grade Three schools, one on the J.D. Hodgson property and the other on the Archie Stouffer property, or building a single Kindergarten to Grade Eight school to accommodate children from both villages.

Director of Education Stuart Baker told Conway that the board will make a decision about which option to pursue by the end of May. He said all of the board's options will require similar amounts of capital expenditure.

After the meeting, board chairman Len Salvatori said the visit by Conway "turned out very well" and said he thinks the minister's comments were positive. "I think anything they can do, they'll do it," said Salvatori.

Baker said the outcome of the meeting with Conway is "very promising."

"We're not expecting miracles in the next few months," said Baker. He said the board would be satisfied if the minister could guarantee that funding will be available in the next few years, so the board could begin work knowing that money is on the way.

Mill awaits MNR approval

compete in some of the same markets.

The Harcourt operation will be the first sawmill owned by Robert Bury, although Commonwealth Plywood already operates four saw mills and six veneer mills.

Caine says he is "standing by the phone" waiting for notification that the ministry has approved the transfer of the timber licenses and timber volume agreements previously held by G.W. Martin Ltd.

Caine says Robert Bury doesn't want the rights to any more timber than Martin had. "We're looking for the same timber rights," he said. "But at the same time we can't accept anything less."

Once the timber rights have been transferred, Caine says the company will begin to bring in lumber from other mills to replenish the depleted stocks in Harcourt. Some of the laid-off employees will be recalled immediately to start receiving and stacking the incoming wood.

About a month later, Caine says operation of the kiln will start and one shift in the sawmill will begin as soon as there is enough lumber.

If there is sufficient supply of timber, Caine says the company wants to run two shifts eventually. Forestry operations will start as soon as the ground has dried out enough to allow easy access into the bush, says Caine.

The extent of the expansion will depend on the health of the lumber market, says Caine. "The mill will be producing a new product and we have to find a home for it in the market."

The Harcourt sawmill is the last of the G.W. Martin operations to be sold. The only holdings left to dispose of are the head office, located in Harcourt, and some property in the Hustville area, says Martin president Norman Laine.

The other Martin operations were sold off to five different companies and Laine says, "for the most part the employees are all back to work. Everyone has been well taken care of."

The only people who lost as a result of the sale are the people who worked at the head office. At one time the building housed 50 employees, now Laine says there are only three people left.

Although there has been some sporadic interest in the remaining G.W. Martin property, Laine says no concrete offers have materialized. Once the final two holdings are sold, it will mean an end to G.W. Martin Ltd. says Laine.

There do not appear to be any reasons at this point for the ministry to turn down the application for transfer of licences. If these applications are turned down, the transaction will fail, says Laine.

Soda Club

Growing up in a small rural community can be a dreadfully boring experience, but such is not the case in Stanhope Township where a group of volunteers calling themselves the Stanhope Recreation Committee has consistently come up with new ideas to keep their youths active.

We're familiar with the annual Fun Day, the summer swim program, summer day camp, and the Halloween party and the Firefighters' Christmas But now there's something new to augment these highly successful activities. They're calling it The Soda Club and its designed to give teenagers a chance to get out one night each month for safe, clean, organized fun.

The concept of a teen club is hardly a new one. Similar ventures have been adopted by communities throughout the province, but until now there have been none in this county. It took the Stanhope Recreation Committee to bring this here.

The Soda Club opens on May 4 at the Stanhope Firefighters Hall with a variety of activities for kids aged 11 to 19. It's open to teenagers from all parts of the county.

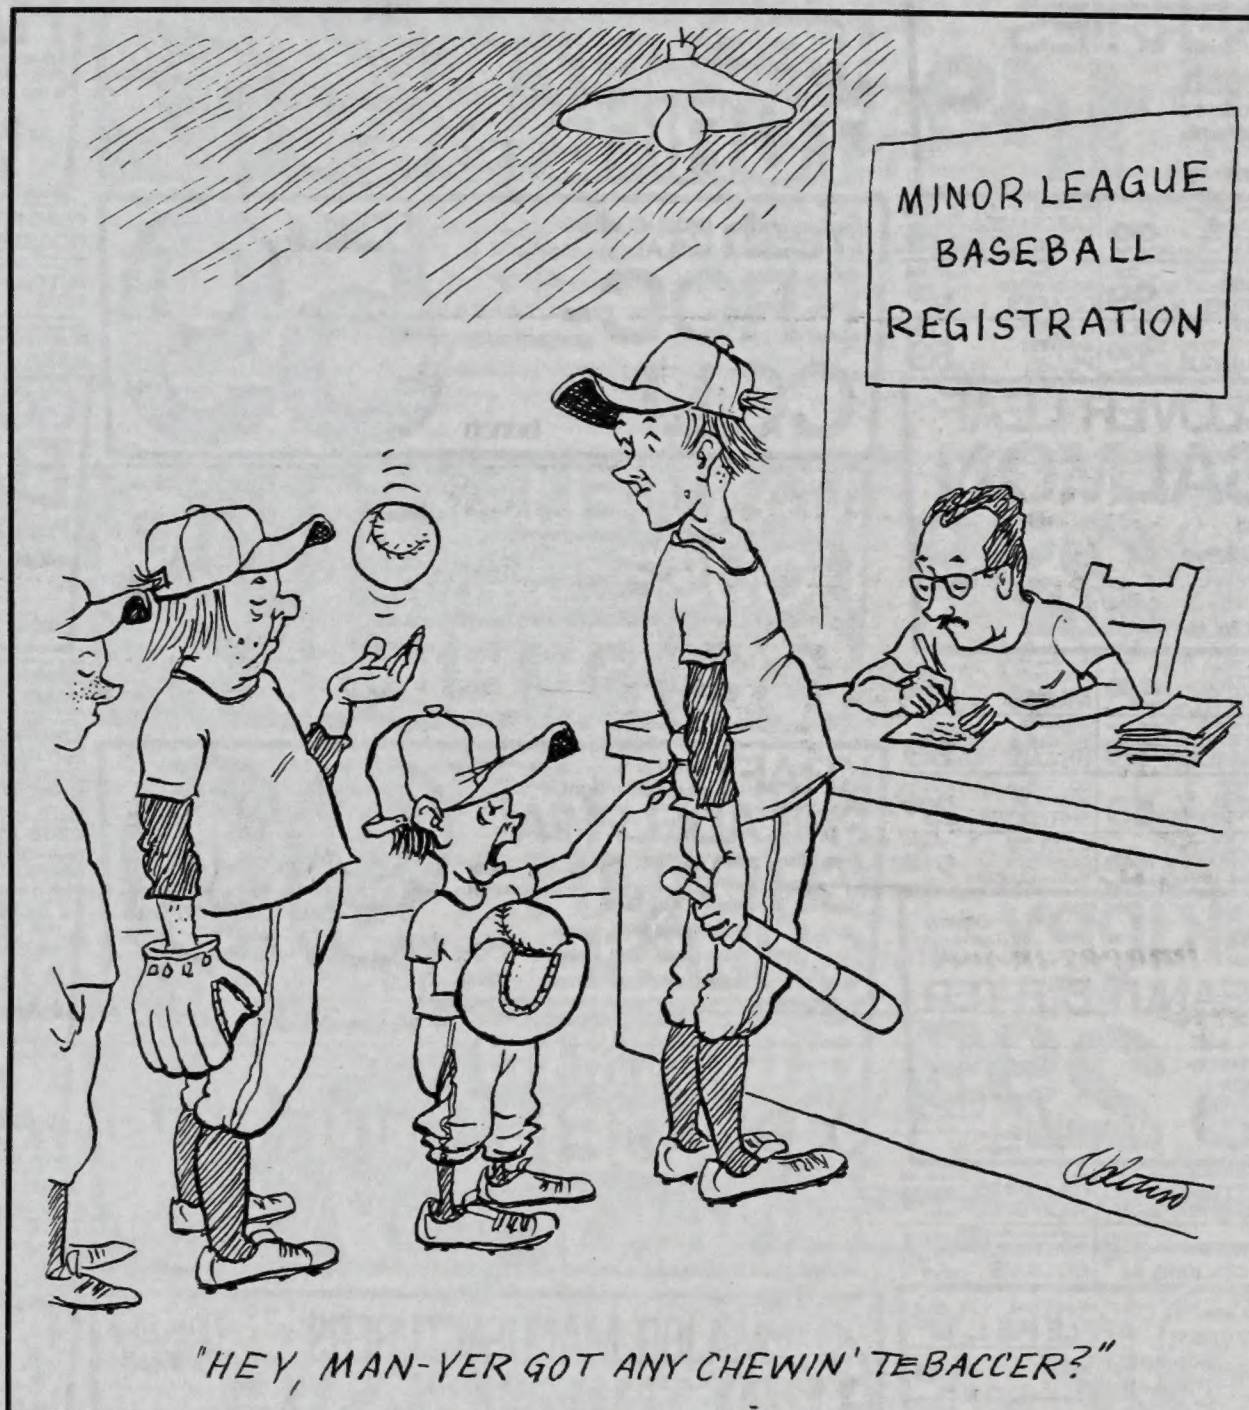

Play ball

Minden area youths also have something to look forward to this summer, thanks to the newly-organized minor softball league.

Now that hockey season is winding down, area kids can look forward to a fun season of organized baseball. This new league is long overdue in the Minden area. It provides kids with the chance to get together with their friends throughout the summer and helps keep them active and out of trouble.

Like The Soda Club, the new ball league is open to kids from throughout the area. Another league may also be offered in Haliburton if enough interest is shown.

With these new activities lined up, growing up in this small community can be a lot of fun.

"HEY, MAN-YER GOT ANY CHEWIN' TE BACCKER?"

Weathermen never say they're sorry

*Everybody talks about the weather,
but nobody does anything about it.*

Everybody thinks that Mark Twain wrote that, but he didn't. A pretty well utterly forgotten scribbler by the name of Charles Dudley Warner penned that observation 'way back in 1897 in an editorial that appeared in the Hartford Courant. Somehow, history bungled it, and now the whole world thinks the credit belongs to Mark Twain.

That doesn't surprise me. Weather is a treacherous topic best untrifled with.

But the hell with it. It's a blustery, cruddy late Spring day; there's a pair of worm-lusting robins hunched over on my front lawn like a couple of winos on a streetcorner; there's a leak in my basement, a draft under the back door, my cat's got spring fever, which means I have to get up every three minutes and forty-five seconds to either let him out or bring him in...and I feel like picking on somebody.

So let's beat up on...

Black 'n White

by Arthur Black

The weatherman.

You know what bugs me most about weathermen? Not that they're wrong all the time.

As a matter of fact, they're not. Their forecasts are reasonably accurate—at least as reliable as Old Man Maidle's down the road. He keeps track of squirrels' acorn stashes and the thickness of caterpillar pelts. He also has a whole bunch of agricultural rhymes about the weather. Rhymes like "Crick don't flow; watch fer snow"; and "Cows in the clover, summer's 'bout over."

I figure Old Man Maidle's weather poetry is dead accurate about 50 percent of the time—which is about the same as the guy with the Magic Marker on TV.

No, it's not the weather forecasters' accuracy (or lack of it) that bothers me. It's the fact that when they are wrong, they...never apologize.

It's true! They can tell you on Friday that Saturday's going to be a great day for a picnic, and you can go to the park with your little hamper of egg salad sandwiches and thermos of Freshie and wind up clinging to a floating picnic table in a deluge that makes the Johnstown Flood look like a sunshower. You get home that night and turn on your TV and does Mister Blow Dry Pompadour apologize for his goof? Nah. He smiles and banters about the Blue Jays with the Sports Jockette and points a well-manicured (dry!) finger towards the low pressure trough over Baffin Island that is going to, he says, make Sunday a 'great day for a picnic'.

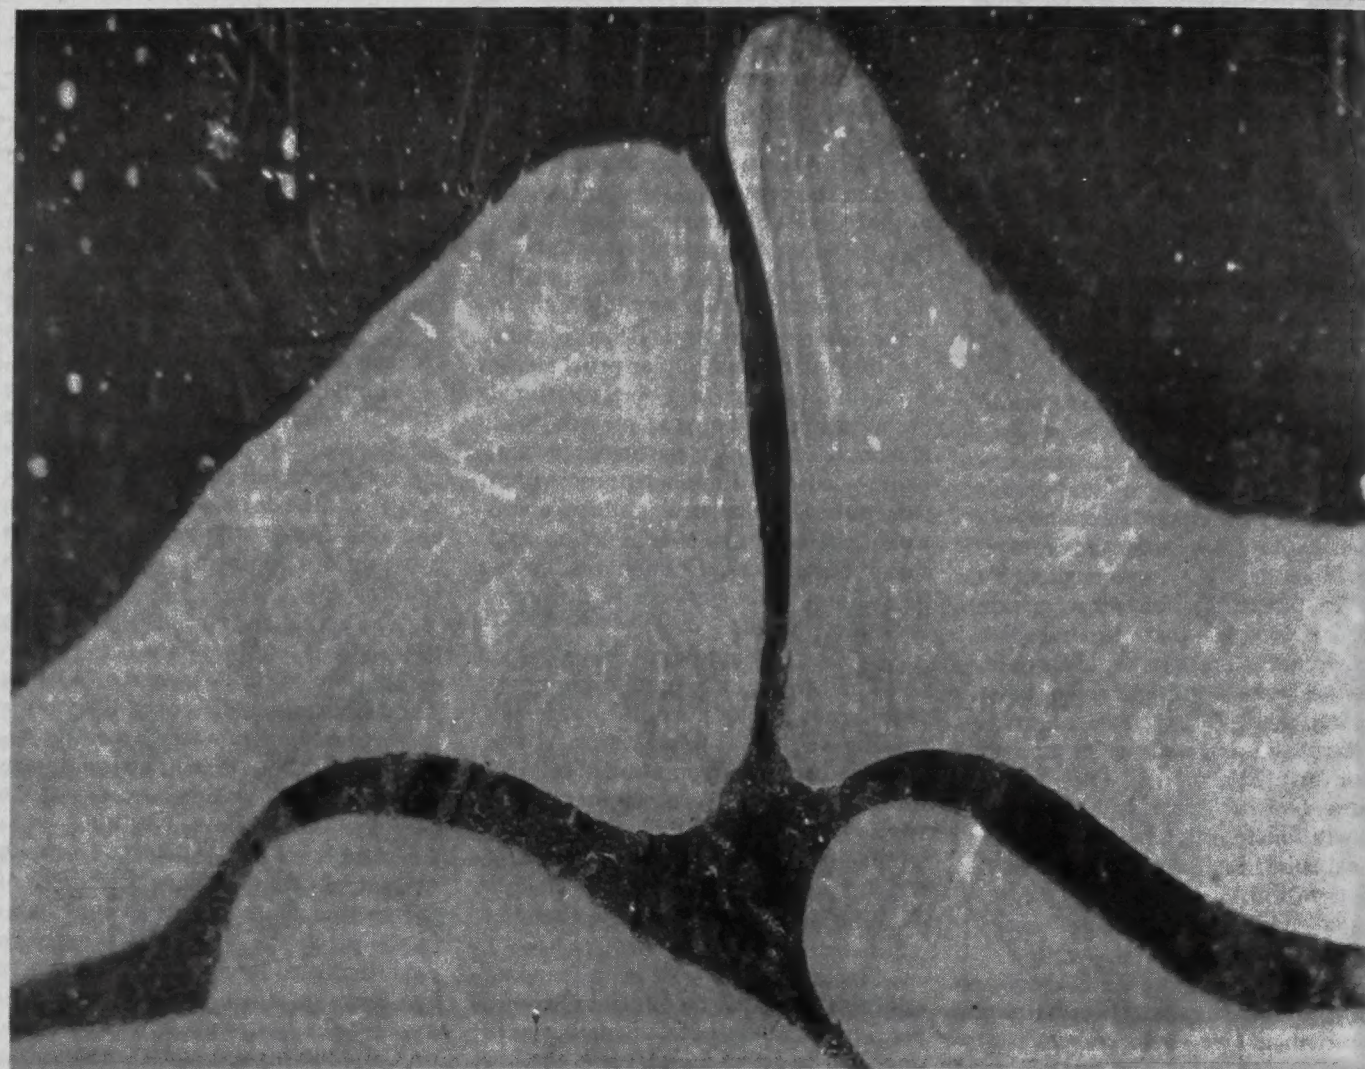

Once—just once—I'd like to see the weatherman pop up on my TV screen right after the newscast, all

Black's humour distorts shaggy joke

Editor:

While it is evident from recent weeks that our Letters column is no laughing matter, it is upsetting when Arthur Black's column isn't one either.

He may be on the short list for a Leacock Award, but in his April 2 column he showed a lack of respect for a classic shaggy dog story that is the equivalent of Sinatra forgetting the words to 'Stardust'.

The story about the man with the talking dog in the bar cannot be turned into a hockey story simply for the purposes of Canadian content. Secondly, in these stories, things always happen in threes. Here is a brief version of how this classic is traditionally told:

The man asks the dog what covers a house, and the dog replies "Wroof". He then asks him to describe sandpaper, and the dog says "Wroof". Finally, he asks who the greatest BASEBALL player was and the dog answers "Wruth".

After the bartender throws them out in the street, the dog says to his owner, "Maybe I should have said Dimaggio." "Makes sense now, doesn't it?"

Information about Burns family sought

Editor:

An inquiry in a letter I received from Andrew Bowman is that she wishes to track down information about the Joseph Burns family, his poems, and also about Clara Burns (Rosser). If you call me I can pass this or give them her address. Maybe I am an historian.

HAVE projects continue to spread

Editor,

The Help A Village Effort committee (HAVE) greets you this springtime and is pleased to report a number of positive and interesting aspects of our developmental work with needy villagers.

Well drilling continues and in cases where problems have occurred, as they must from time to time, we are pushing for solutions. Gerry Feltham is with Dr. Dondsen in Nowrangpur monitoring the work that we sponsor there.

The director of the Rural Community Health Centre in Nowrangpur is Dr. Dondsen and he has made our work there possible. He has recently been honoured for the work he is doing to meet the crucial educational needs of tribal people. He has been awarded the J. Roby Kidd award by the International Council for Adult Education and $2,000 Canadian goes to him to support the work. We are glad for him and for HAVE's share in achieving quality developmental work.

The RUCHC staff and local people are holding in Nowrangpur, India, on April 27, their second annual Walk for Water. Gerry Feltham will be there to walk with them. This is their own effort patterned on our walk for water which will be held as usual in June.

Work at the Base Centre in Nowrangpur continues to expand and recently

Gerry Feltham was able to present the graduating certificates in the first group of women who completed their course in tailoring. They are now carrying their work into the villages.

We think we should share this positive report with you so that you know what good developmental work has been made possible through your support of the HAVE Committee.

decked out in manacles and prison greys. I'd like to hear him confess to incompetence for missing yesterday's blizzard, plead guilty to lousy forecasting in general, then commit the weatherpersons equivalent of hari kiri—falling on his telescope pointer in front of the Canada Weather Map.

It won't happen in my lifetime of course—but I would have settled for watching TV in Britain the night after the devastating hurricane of 1987.

This really happened folks.

Following his newscast, the BBC news anchor turned to weatherman Ian McCaskill and said, on live TV "Well, Ian, you chaps were a fat lot of good last night."

Ian defended himself meekly, pointing out that they had forecast a "rather windy, showery airflow".

"No kidding" responded the news anchor wittingly. "If you can't forecast the worst storm for several centuries...what are you doing?"

Poor Ian McCaskill. He and all the other British weather forecasters really didn't have a leg to stand on—particularly when it was revealed that weathermen in France, Spain and the Netherlands had forecast the hurricane, using data obtained from the Weather Centre in...

Reading, England.

If only Ian had double-checked with Old Man Maidle...

MEECH WILSON

Surrendering to the provinces Is the accord worth saving?

We continue this week with Marjorie Bowker's analysis of the Meech Lake Accord. In this installment, she sees problems in how the Accord gives additional powers to the provinces over immigration and questions the fairness of the policy covering appointment of judges to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Immigration

There has been a sharing of power over immigration, as between the federal and provincial governments, ever since the B.N.A. Act of 1867 (section 95). In case of conflict, federal law prevails.

Immigration is covered in two segments of the Meech Lake Accord: first, in the Accord itself (section 95A-E), and second, in an Agreement which is incorporated in, and which accompanies the Accord.

What the Meech Lake Accord Does

In respect to Quebec

What the Meech Lake Accord does is write into the Constitution an agreement (called Cullen-Couture) which was entered into between Ottawa and Quebec in 1978. That agreement gave Quebec a role in selecting immigrants for its province. The Meech Lake Accord goes further -- guaranteeing that Quebec will receive a fixed share of all immigrants entering Canada each year. This share will be equal to Quebec's proportion of the Canadian population (at present this is approximately 25%) - to which may be added a further 5% at the option of Quebec.

The Accord further provides that the federal government will no longer be involved in providing integration services (language and culture) for immigrants entering Quebec. The Quebec government will handle these services and will receive "reasonable compensation" for doing so.

In all fairness, no one would object to Quebec having a role in the selection of its immigrants, and being entitled to a proportionate share of Canadian immigrants, especially in the light of Quebec's concern about declining birth rates. However, the transfer of integration services (which means the orientation of immigrants to their new life in Canada) is a serious abandonment by the federal government of a national responsibility. There could be a risk of the integration process focusing more on Quebec than on Canada.

In respect to the other provinces

The Meech Lake Accord would allow other provinces to "negotiate" with the federal government for immigration agreements "appropriate" to their "needs and circumstances" (section 95A). Quebec would have some advantage, however, in having an arrangement already in place, and on terms which might be broader than those which other provinces are likely to negotiate. For example, any new agreement must not be "repugnant" to "national standards and objectives" enacted by Parliament (section 95B (2)).

In respect to the federal government.

It will continue to have control over the classes of immigrants and the level of immigration.

The Effect of the Meech Lake Accord on Immigration

Assuming that agreements are concluded with some or all of the remaining nine provinces, we could end up with ten immigration policies instead of one. In the end, provinces could be competing for immigrants, or for a special class of immigrants. Some, for example, might prefer only well-to-do immigrants, and be less willing to accept Asian and Latin-American refugees.

As for the immigrants themselves, if provincial quotas were in effect, immigrants could be deprived of freedom to settle in the province of their choice. They might even have to shop around for the easiest province to enter.

However, the most serious feature of the Accord is allowing language and cultural integration services to be provided at the provincial level, instead of by the federal government, as had always been the policy. Immigrants enter Canada to become Canadian citizens, and to develop a sense of attachment to Canada not to become culturally and linguistically identified with a particular province.

Infinitely better is a single national immigration policy (as at present) with Quebec (because of its particular nature) being accorded a special status within that policy. That special status could well include control over selection, and a guaranteed quota of immigrants. Transfer of integration services is, however, very questionable.

Summary

The Meech Lake immigration provision could add to the confusion already existing in Canada's immigration system. It will create a fragmentation of services for immigrants. It represents an ill-advised capitulation to the provinces of a power which is national in scope and which is properly a federal responsibility.

Nominations to the Supreme Court of Canada

Since the 1949 abolition of Canadian appeals to the Privy Council in Britain, the Supreme Court of Canada has been our final court of appeal. It is the last resort for Canadian litigants and for our interpretations of the constitution. It is properly referred to as "the pinnacle of our legal system".

A high degree of legal competence is required of its members as well as high moral character, talent, experience and commitment.

Present Procedure For Appointment of Judges

Judges of the Supreme Court have been appointed by the federal cabinet ever since the Court was established in 1875. There are nine judges, including a Chief Justice, with Quebec having three permanent seats. The three Quebec seats assure the presence on the Court of judges knowledgeable of the Quebec Civil Code in relation to appeals from Quebec. The mandatory retirement age for judges is 75. The present Court has six men and three women judges.

Though there is no fixed rule, the general policy (apart from the three Quebec judges) is that out of the remaining six, three will come from Ontario, two from the four western provinces, and one from Atlantic Canada. This distribution conforms to population ratios.

The actual appointment is made by the federal cabinet on the recommendation of the Minister of Justice. The Minister usually consults with the Bar in the region from which the appointment is made, but there is no input from provincial governments as such. At the Supreme Court level, political considerations are at a minimum. In recent years, many appointments have been of judges already serving in superior courts in the provinces, especially those with experience in courts of appeal. There has been an effort by governments to appoint the best persons for positions on Canada's highest court, and this has been true under the Mulroney government as well.

MEECH: Quebec to receive unqualified control of judge appointments

1. When a vacancy occurs amongst the three Quebec judges, the federal cabinet (Governor-General-In-Council) will appoint a person whose name has been submitted by the government of Quebec. This means that Quebec's nominee will automatically be appointed with no federal input into the selection. Quebec will not be competing with any other part of Canada in submitting its nominee. In other words, it has unqualified control over the naming of its three judges.

2. When a vacancy occurs amongst the other six judges, all the remaining nine provinces can submit names. The federal government will appoint a judge from the names submitted, provided that person is "acceptable to the Privy Council of Canada" (which means the federal cabinet). This means, in effect, that the remaining nine provinces will be competing to have their nominees accepted. There is nothing to prevent a single province submitting several names. Then from all the names submitted, the final selection must be "approved" by Ottawa -- which is not so by the Quebec appointees.

Thus Quebec is placed in a favoured position in regard to Supreme Court of Canada appointments. But all the other provinces are given a comparable (though not equivalent) role -- one that has, until now, been the sole prerogative of the federal government.

Some Previous Proposals for Appointment of Judges

Various proposals have been made over the years as to how Supreme Court judges should be appointed. Suggestions extend back over some 20 years and have included the following proposals:

- consulting with the Canadian Bar Association;
- appointment of a special advisor on judicial appointments;
- conferring with provincial attorneys general; and
- more recently, a report by the Canadian Bar Association in 1985 entitled "The Appointment of Judges in Canada".

After stating that judicial appointments should be based on merit and excellence alone, this report recommended that the appointing power remain with the federal government. Appointments would be made in consultation with provincial attorneys-general and an advisory committee of lawyers and judges.

As a result of the latter report, for courts other than the Supreme Court of Canada, committees were set up in various provinces with power to designate as "qualified" or "not qualified" persons whose names have been submitted by the federal government.

Thus for over 20 years, Canada has been experimenting with various systems for appointing judges. None has been entirely satisfactory.

There is no precedent for the appointment procedure prescribed in the Meech Lake Accord. Once implemented, whether good or bad, it would become entrenched in our constitution.

Impartiality should be the prime consideration in the appointment of judges. They must be immune from political interference.

Need for Impartiality

The prime consideration in the appointment of judges is to ensure their impartiality. Judicial independence requires that judges have no association or interest beyond the matters before the court which would have an influence on their judgement.

In particular, cases involving interpretation of the Charter of Rights and Freedoms which are increasing in volume, require the Court to perform a quasi-political role as never before. This will make it increasingly important that judges be immune from political influence arising from their appointment. It is not unnatural to assume that most provincial governments will choose nominees who are known to be sympathetic to the provincial position on constitutional or other issues. One such controversial issue that could arise, and on which certain provinces have entrenched positions, is that concerning aboriginal rights. It could be important to some provinces to have a nominee who reflected the provincial view, yet the national interest could be compromised.

Canadians may wish to ponder whether judicial appointments under the Meech Lake Accord will assure the necessary degree of detachment for the judges of Canada's highest court.

Until now, provincial governments have not been parties to the selection of judges for the superior courts or Courts of Appeal in the provinces, or for the Supreme Court of Canada. However, Provincial Courts, whose judges outnumber all other categories, are the sole responsibility of the provincial governments, including the appointment of judges.

The practice in most countries is that judges of their highest court are appointed by the national government. Australia in 1979 modified this practice slightly by requiring the federal government to consult with the states in appointments to the High Court. West Germany allows the states to take part in selection of judges for the federal appellate courts. However, the kind of role which the Meech Lake accord allots to the provinces has no parallel in any other federal system.

Effect of The Meech Lake Accord On The Supreme Court

The present system in Canada whereby the federal government alone appoints judges is most likely to assure an overall balance amongst the judges in respect to race, gender and geographic region. It is also the system most likely to preserve collegiality on the bench, which is essential to the court's proper functioning. With all nine provinces submitting nominations for the six non-Quebec seats, there is no assurance that the regional composition of the court will be maintained. There is nothing in the Accord to prevent some future federal government from appointing judges from one region alone, rather than on the basis of regional distribution, which now prevails.

Over the past decade, excellent appointments have been made of judges who are already experienced in lower courts. Not all provincial cabinets would be aware of suitable nominations across Canada in this category. Such names might never appear on provincial government nomination lists. The Court would thus be deprived of the added strength which such appointments would provide.

Weaknesses In The Meech Lake Accord

1. If the federal government is unwilling to approve any of the provincial nominees, there is no mechanism in the Accord for settling the impasse other than leaving the seat vacant.

2. The Accord does not make it clear how many nominations an individual province may submit--be it one, or several, or a list.

3. Because of provincial competition for the six non-Quebec seats, no single province can have strong expectations that its nominee will receive the appointment. As a result, there could be a high level of frustration with the system on the part of the provincial governments.

4. Provincial nominees are likely to reflect the political slant of the government which nominated them. Yet the Supreme Court must assure that national interest are paramount.

5. The Northwest Territories and the Yukon do not share in the nominating power, since they are not yet "provinces". Yet their combined population is 75,000 and they are achieving considerable autonomy in other fields.

There was no need for the extent of the concessions made to the provinces in this accord regarding appointments to the Supreme Court.

Conclusion

There was no need for the federal government to make concessions to the provinces to the extent it has done in the Meech Lake Accord respecting appointments to the Supreme Court.

The Accord far exceeds the demands which Quebec made as a condition for signing the 1982 Constitution. Quebec asked for the right to "participate in" and "consent to" judicial appointments. This demand could have been met by establishing a selection committee consisting of lawyers and judges and representatives of the provincial and federal governments. Instead of that, the Accord has decentralized the appointment procedure and politicized the process.

The effect of the Meech Lake Accord is to entrench in the Constitution for years to come a procedure that has been neither tested nor proven. Where changes to our constitution are made, Canadians have a right to expect the best system possible way of replacement. The question is: Does the Meech Lake proposal assure this?

(Next week Marjorie Bowker examines the impact the Meech Lake Accord will have on the senate, amending the constitution, northern concerns and the first ministers' conferences).

SOS takes school board to court

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The struggle over the future of five, small elementary schools in northern Victoria County will be decided in the courts.

The Victoria County Board of Education wants to close schools in Kinmount, Norland, Burnt River, Coboconk and Kirkfield and relocate the students in two larger schools being planned for Coboconk and Kirkfield.

But residents of the affected communities banded together to oppose the school closings and have fought the board tooth and nail since 1986.

The residents formed a committee called Save Our Schools (SOS) and have started legal proceedings to have the closures stopped, at least until a review of the board's decision can be carried out.

At a public meeting held in Norland on March 26, Susan Archer, who chairs the SOS committee, unveiled the group's latest attempt to keep the northern schools open.

Archer presented a notice of Judicial Review, signed by herself and 14 other SOS members, which has been served on the board of education.

As a result of the review, SOS is hoping the court will:

- *grant the residents access to the minutes of all school board and committee minutes,

- *declare that the decision to close the five northern schools is null and void, and

- *declare that the school board policy on school closures is not in compliance with Ministry of Education guidelines.

The SOS committee also contends that the board of education acted improperly by discussing the issue of school closings in closed meetings.

By having the board's decision to close the schools declared null and void by the court, "if nothing else they will have to start all over again," said Archer.

Considering that it took the board almost three-and-a-half years to get this far, forcing them to start the school closing process all over again would be a considerable victory for SOS.

According to Al Ingram, the superintendent of finance for the Victoria County Board of Education, the issue of the five northern schools has been under consideration since 1983, although the motion to close wasn't passed until October 1986.

In 1983 the board formed a committee to study the delivery of education in the north of the county. The committee consisted of two representatives from each of the five communities and trustees serving on the board.

This committee held public meetings in the communities to discuss the fate of the schools and the conclusion was that the five schools should be consolidated into two larger schools.

Ingram says there was quite a bit of debate over where the two new schools should be built, and after each municipal election there were changes in what the board thought should be done.

In early 1986, the board made the decision to close the five northern schools, but there were complaints that the board had made the decision improperly by not passing a motion of intent to close the schools.

The board then agreed to pass a new motion identifying each of the schools to be closed and allowed time for public input on the closures. In October the board passed a motion of intent to close the five schools and relocate the students in two consolidated schools.

After consideration, and rejection, of several proposed sites for the new schools, the board chose Kirkfield and Coboconk as locations.

The location in Kirkfield is already the site of an elementary school, which the board will be replacing with one of the consolidated schools. Because the land is already owned by the board and zoned for schools, the Kirkfield proposal will be ready to go to tender in the near future.

The board has an offer to purchase on a 10-acre site in Coboconk, but the land has to be rezoned at a public meeting later this month first.

Ingram says the board will be responding to the notice of Judicial Review filed by the SOS and will submit documents outlining the position of the board of education.

The decision to close the five schools was made based on the quality of education in the north says Ingram. "We don't believe we can provide the necessary human and financial resources in the northern schools to provide the quality of education we'd like," he said.

When it comes to issues like support staff and providing new equipment, Ingram says it's more economical to equip the two proposed schools than to try and equip each of the five schools. "We couldn't justify the expense to upgrade all five of the schools," he said.

And even after the five schools are consolidated into the two new schools, Ingram says those two schools will still be among the smallest in the county.

The estimated cost of building the two schools is $8.2 million. The board hopes to sell the northern school properties at a combined price of about $280,000.

But according to Archer, the decision to close the schools will not only harm the communities they are located in, it also is an economically unsound move.

With the board planning to have the new schools in operation by the fall of 1991, Archer says this judicial review is The SOS's last chance of saving the northern schools. She says the lawyers representing the committee feel SOS has a very good case against the board.

Soda Club offers monthly fun for teens

Area teens will have somewhere to go this summer to get together for fun and recreation.

The Stanhope Township Recreation Committee is organizing a special club geared to teenagers. 'The Soda Club', is the name of this new venture and initial plans are to open up one night each month for dancing, singing and games the Stanhope Firefighters Hall.

The Soda Club is a place to be with friends, where teens can sit, talk, listen or dance to taped music. Teens can get involved in a large variety table games (pictionary, cards, jeopardy, checkers) or playing ping pong.

The club "is a place for you—to do your own thing", says recreation committee chairman Thelda McGuire. It's a regular spot to meet and have fun with your mates. People are encouraged to bring their guitar (or whatever) and play for the gathering.

The Soda Club is being organized and run by the Recreation Committee because members feel there is a strong need for a safe, clean, organized, fun place for the youth of the area.

The club is to be supervised by committee members, but they are hoping teens will contribute their ideas to help improve the programs. A suggestion box will be made available and the committee is hoping people will make use of this opportunity to say what they would like to hear, see or do during Soda Club nights.

Although it is stationed in Stanhope Township, organizers are hoping to draw teens from Haliburton, Minden, Dorset and surrounding areas.

Parents driving kids to

The Soda Club will also have an opportunity to relax and enjoy free coffee, tea, cards and chatter while the kids enjoy themselves. The committee is planning to have a separate room downstairs in the hall for adults to relax and wait for the kids.

"We understand that it is awkward when you have to drive some distance to the Club and then have nowhere to 'hang your hat' until the kids are ready to come home," says McGuire.

The Soda Club opens on May 4 at 8 p.m. and the first night runs until midnight. Regular Soda Club nights will then be held on the first Friday of each month (more often if youth interest merits it). There will be a token admission fee of $1 and pop, sodas, chips and other snacks will be available for sale.

Deadline passes, still no decision

More than a month after his deadline, the Minister of the Environment still hasn't reached a decision about the fate of the Dysart sewage plant expansion.

Jim Bradley was supposed to have decided whether or not the proposed expansion requires further study in early March.

According to Robert Winston of the ministry's Environmental Assessment Branch, Bradley has been in possession of the recommendations regarding the plant expansion since the end of February.

Winston says the minister's staff is "working vigorously" on the issue and have called the assessment branch on three separate occasions asking for more details about the recommendations. There's still no word on when Bradley will make his decision, says Winston.

Bradley is dealing with a request by cottage associations on the Kashagawigamog lake chain to have the sewage plant expansion 'bumped-up' to an Individual Environmental Assessment.

The cottagers fear that expanding the existing plant will have a detrimental impact on water quality in the lake chain.

Dysart is proposing to expand the sewage plant in order to accommodate effluent from a planned sewage line extension to service resorts on the north shore of Lake Kashagawigamog.

Dysart Reeve Bill Davis says it's unfortunate that the minister's decision has been delayed so long, but says it's more important "to make sure it's done right."

"We want them to do the best job for everyone concerned," says Davis. "I just hope they arrive at a workable solution."

But the delays are costing money as the estimated price of the expansion climbs, and Davis hopes a decision is reached "in the very near future."

Library hours extended

Funding for an additional 16 open hours per week has been approved for most branches of the Haliburton County Public Library system.

Increased hours became effective April 1 in most cases while others will not come into place until after Easter.

Branches are located in Cardiff, Dorset, Gooderham, Haliburton, Highland Grove, Minden, Stanhope and Wilberforce.

Increases will be made in a manner most appropriate to the results of the Users Survey conducted in 1989 and may vary from branch to branch. In some branches, new hours may be assigned to the morning which has been of benefit for pre-schoolers and others may see hours assigned in the evening for the benefit of students and others. Lunch hour branch users should check for changes as well.

For current hours information, patrons are advised to check their local branch or call County Library Headquarters at 457-2241.

While increases may seem modest when taken as a whole, they greatly augment both service capabilities already in place and public access and, at the same time, represent the first major adjustment in this area over a few years and also reflect the increased potential demand on services and facilities.

Keeping future demands in mind, the Board has also approved a new set of criteria for the adjustment of future open hours on a branch-by-branch basis.

Henceforth, the Board will review the activity of each individual branch on an annual basis in the light of established criteria, primarily programming activity and direct circulation.

Branches exceeding minimal criteria will be assigned additional open hours — subject to the availability of funds — whereas other branches which fail to maintain their former position will have hours reduced.

This rationalization will ensure the most effective and efficient use of hours available.

Now, more than ever, if you've got a question, you can get an answer at any of the nine branches of the Haliburton County Public Library.

Commune leader Theriault to appeal his conviction

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The former leader of a Burnt River commune is appealing his conviction on the charge of criminal negligence causing bodily harm.

Roch 'Moses' Theriault pleaded guilty to the charge last October, but according to his lawyer an attempt is being made to have the conviction appealed.

Theriault appeared in Provincial Court in Lindsay last week with his lawyer Julian Falconer from Toronto.

Theriault is the former leader of a commune called the Ant Hill Kids, who lived on a farm near Burnt River south of Kinmount.

Last summer, Theriault and several of his followers led police on a massive, 10-week manhunt after one of the commune members complained that Theriault had amputated her arm against her will.

Gabriel Lavolie, 36, had apparently sustained an injury to the arm, which became infected. Rather than seek outside assistance, the commune members completed the amputation themselves.

Theriault is currently serving a 12-year sentence for the offence.

In an interview last week, Falconer told The Times that he's applying to appeal the conviction on the grounds that Theriault didn't understand what was happening when he plead guilty to the charge.

"The bottom line is, that if a person is at his bail hearing, enters a plea of guilty without a lawyer and is sentenced to 12 years in prison, he probably doesn't understand what he's doing," said Falconer.

Falconer has only represented Theriault since February.

Because of the unusually speedy nature of the proceedings, the fact that Theriault wasn't presented by a lawyer and there were no pre-sentence reports conducted, Falconer doesn't think the conviction should stand.

Because the normal period for appealing the conviction expired in November, Falconer has to file for special permission in order to proceed with his appeal.

Commune members Jacques Giguere, Nicole Ruel and Chantal Lavrie are also serving time for the assault against Lavolie.

Theriault is also facing a first degree murder charge in connection to the death of one of the commune members.

The skeletal remains of Solange Boilard were discovered by police on Theriault's farm on October 24. They suspect that Boilard was killed sometime between September 27, and October 8, of 1988.

The murder charge was laid against Theriault on the basis of police interviews of other members of the Ant Hill Kids.

Last week a preliminary hearing for the murder charge was scheduled for September 10. It is expected to take about two weeks. The hearing, and the trial, will be conducted in both English and French.

Bradamore, Hughes to plead not guilty

The two men charged with allowing silt to enter the Gull River say they intend to plead not guilty.

Brad Bradamore and Larry Hughes appeared in Provincial Court in Minden on Friday, and said they plan to retain a lawyer to fight the charges.

Bradamore and Hughes were charged by the Ministry of Natural Resources after spring run-off carried silt from a Bobcaygeon Road excavation site down McKnight Drive and into the river.

Hughes is the contractor who has been working on the site and Bradamore is the owner and developer of the property.

After their appearance in court, the men said they believe the charges are the result of anti-development sentiments among members of the ministry staff.

Hughes says that he was told by ministry staff that the the complaint about silt running from the site was lodged by ministry a employee Wayne Wilson.

Noting Wilson's recent vocal opposition to Ray Moore's condominium project, Hughes is suspicious of Wilson's motives for complaining about the silt.

Besides questioning the reasons for the charge being laid, Hughes and Bradamore say they also intend to dispute the amount of silt that actually made its way in the river.

Dean Elliott was the Justice of the Peace who presided over Bradamore and Hughes' appearance in court. Given the fact that Elliott is chairman of the Planning Advisory Committee and has been the subject of criticism from Bradamore and Hughes, the two men asked for a change of venue for their court appearance.

However Elliott assured them that he will not be presiding over the trial, which will take place in front of a judge.

For the ministry's part, Fish and Wildlife supervisor Stan Flemming says Bradamore and Hughes' allegations of the charge being the result of an anti-development bias are totally unfounded.

"There is absolutely no way that has anything to do with this charge," says Flemming. "It's just a silt spill." He says the ministry office is not involved in any of the disputes over Bradamore's development and the charge has been dealt in exactly the same manner as any other charge of a similar nature.

'Big talk, no action'

Reflections

by Dr. David Suzuki

When I was young, kids taunted each other for being "big talk, no action."

When Chief Paiskon, an Indian from the Amazon rain forest visited Canada, he observed "Civilized people talk a lot and think they've done something. We Kaispo just act."

Politicians rank low on the scale of public esteem today I believe, not because of isolated cases of corruption, laziness or stupidity (that annoys and angers) but because of a perception that politicians equate talk with action.

(When I write a letter to the prime minister, a cabinet minister or MP, I often receive a copy of a speech in reply!) Polls, immediate crises or pressure groups deflect politicians from promises made during elections.

As well, daily life of a politician is fragmented by too many commitments to leave time to read, engage in prolonged and meaningful dialogue or even think.

And few politicians care enough about what is right to put their jobs on the line over an issue.

Brian Mulroney came to office with a massive majority and a clear mandate to govern.

To environmentalists, one of his first acts was a disaster when he appointed Suzanne Blais-Grenier as environment minister.

She proceeded to chop programs like the Great Lakes herring gull program and the Marine Ecology unit at the Bedford Institute when she should have been expanding them.

In his second term, Mulroney highlighted the environment as a major priority.

He then appointed a rising star, Lucien Bouchard, as environment minister.

All of the first ministers embraced the concept of "sustainable development" as proposed by the Brundtland Commission in 1987.

At the energy conference in Montreal last year, Mulroney said: "There is no question that a much more fundamental integration of economic and environmental imperatives is needed."

The gestures and words sound great, but where is the action to back them up?

Take the issue of global warming caused by putting carbon into the atmosphere.

Canada contributes a disproportionate share by using twice as much energy per capita as Sweden and Japan yet our government remains committed to megaprojects like Hibernia that will only encourage our use of fossil fuels.

A government report indicates energy conservation could reduce carbon emissions and save over 150 billion dollars yet a government screaming fiscal restraint shows no inclination to make conversations a high priority.

While an international conference in Toronto suggested a target of reducing energy use by 20 per cent in 15 years, provincial and federal energy ministers concluded that we would be lucky to hold the line at a 20-per-cent increase.

Federal Energy Minister Jake Epp has stated that jobs and profit must come before environmental

Mass transit a solution to pollution

And we should be making the country far more hostile to cars and finding incentives to encourage the use of mass transit not cutting rail service.

There is simply no evidence that Mulroney's proposed integration of economic and environmental priorities has permeated the many departments and layers of government.

Money can be saved and jobs maintained as pollution and energy use are reduced.

All we need is leadership and political will.

Population growth and industrialization in Third World will have profound consequence for the entire planet.

Out of sheer self interest, we must increase our commitments to foreign aid to provide education on birth control and allow them to raise their standard of living with the least polluting, most energy efficient technologies.

But reducing national debt is our major preoccupation.

The environment minister has not demonstrated the clout to bring other ministers into line with his environmental vision.

He understands the magnitude of the crisis facing us—he told me global warming is a threat to the survival of our species—and as a brand new father, he now has an investment in the future.

Yet he has never put his job on the line as cabinet members make decisions that counteract his objectives.

There is a widely held view that the government is cynically waiting for the environment to fade as an issue to be replaced by more urgent problems like language, abortion and economic slumps.

But every minute of inaction or delay means the planet is permanently degraded and wilderness irretrievable lost.

We desperately need leadership and vision in political office.

It's high time we remembered our childhood values and told politicians to stop being all talk and no action.

Gallery show a 'real mixed bag'

People's Choice

Art lovers will have plenty to draw their interest at a new show opening today at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery in Minden.

And, they'll have the opportunity to select which piece is worthy of the first 'People's Choice' award, an honour to be bestowed on the artist who has created a work that appeals to the most viewers.

The Members Spring Collection, a compilation of work by 21 Gallery members, is a new concept for the Agnes Jamieson Gallery, as is the award. Members were invited to submit their own arts or crafts for this showing, which runs until April 28. Visitors to the gallery will have the opportunity to cast their ballot for their favourite work. The winner will have his or her name engraved on a plaque to be hung in the gallery.

"There's no prize or money," Gallery administrator Alice Don says of the award. "It's an honour, really."

Since this is the first time the gallery has taken on such a collection, Don said she was not sure how well it would go over. However, she said she was very pleased with the entries, many of which are for sale.

The collection, which includes paintings, carvings and a variety of other crafts, was set up late last week, filling the main display area of the gallery. Don says people will find it very interesting to see the wide ranging talents of local artists.

"It's a complete change from the type of show we usually have," she said. She says shows normally focus on one type of art from one or two artists. This show offers a "real mixed bag," from 21 local artists.

"I didn't know what kind of response we'd get, but it's been good," Don said. The show features everything from carvings to pottery to sculptures and stained glass. She hopes more artists will see the success of this year's efforts and enter their work next year, making for an even bigger showing.

Gallery members who have entered works in this show include John and Virginia Sagal (pottery and Dulcimers); Ed Hancock, Joan Hoad, Ron Murdoch, Celia Wilson, Audrey Grant and Jan Bowen (watercolours); Dick Griffin (pastels); Eleanor Bunker (quilt); Merv Bunker and Thelma Lee (wood carving); Doreen Berry (stained glass); Barb Peel (weaving and pottery); Jean Hadley and Vicky Cross (weaving); May Bradbury (rug hooking) Hannah Casper (knitting and crocheting); Jean Stevens (folk art); Peter Hoad (clay sculpting), and Lorna Hicks (quilt and crafts).

The Agnes Jamieson Gallery is located on Bobcaygeon Road in Minden, North of the Gull River Bridge.

Minden minor baseball registration date set

Now that hockey season is finally winding down in Minden, kids can start thinking about getting the bats, balls and gloves out to warm up for the coming baseball season.

For the first time ever, a minor baseball league is being organized in Minden for kids age four to 20. Registration is to be held this Wednesday and Thursday at Archie Stouffer Elementary School from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

For the younger kids, four to eight years old, a T-Ball league is being organized to introduce them to the basics of the game. Older players will be playing in mixed leagues according to their age.

An organizational meeting was held April 1 at the school house in Lochlin when it was decided to go ahead with the league. Organizers are hoping a similar league will be run in Haliburton under the umbrella of the Haliburton County Baseball Association.

The new ball league was the idea of Kevin Smith, who coached a Midget fastball team in Minden last year. He was elected league president at the April 1 meeting. Kim Colliss is the vice president.

The cost to register will be $10 per child or $25 for more than three children from a family.

For more information, contact Kim Colliss at 286-3492, or Mark Thompson at 286-4445.

Home capture Men's league crown

Home Hardware captured the championship of the Minden Men's Recreational Hockey League last Monday night with a 7-4 win over Westside Jug City.

The men's league final was typical of the close, fast action displayed throughout the regular season and the playoffs. Although Home stole an strong lead in the first period of this deciding game, they could never relax. Keeping up the pressure, Westside made a real contest out of it until the siren sounded to end the game.

Home opened strong with three goals in the first period. Kim Colliss scored the first one on a pass from Barry Boice. Scott Hamilton beat Westside goalie Rob Crowe to open the lead to 2-0 and Peter Walker upped the count to 3-0 later in the period.

Westside turned up the heat in the second period, but had a lot of trouble getting anything past Home goalie Kevin Smith. Westside's offence opened up a lot of scoring opportunities, but Smith kept them off the scoreboard until midway through the period when Kim Hamilton chipped in a Bernie Upton rebound.

Barry Shaw brought Home's lead back to three, scoring on a pass from Hamilton in the third period. But Dave Pettes again narrowed the lead with a goal assisted by Mark Lund.

Boice brought the score to 5-2 for Home midway through the final period, connecting on a pass from Hamilton.

However, Westside fought back with two more of their own to come within a single goal of a tie. Hamilton scored the first goal with Norm Barry Assisting. Ben Manuge put the second one into the mesh assisted by Lund.

With time running out, Home once again opened the gap on a goal by Pettes, assisted by Boice. The sewed up the championship with an empty-net goal by Andy Campbell from Hamilton.

Team captains Paul Walker and Kevin Smith accepted the Junior Windover Memorial Trophy after Home Hardware defeated Westside Jug City in the final game of the Minden Men's Recreational League Playoffs last Monday. League president Barry Ward presented the trophy to the champions.

Dorset students oppose GST

The Federal Government isn't making any friends with students at Dorset Public School with its Goods and Services Tax, slated to come into effect in 1991.

Several students recently wrote to Prime Minister Brian Mulroney asking that he reconsider the GST with regard to the tax on reading material. The following is a sampling of those letters:

Dear Mr. Mulroney,

I wrote to you because you want to put tax on books and I don't think as many will buy books that way.

I love to read and if you put tax on books I won't be able to buy as many books.

We need books for people to learn how to read, but if you put a tax on books less people will learn how!

Jessica Reilly
Age 8
Dorset

Dear Mr. Brian Mulroney

I'm writing to tell you I think it does not make sense to tax books. I think we should save money to buy books and not keep saving and saving more money.

I like books. I don't want to spend more. This is supposed to be the year of literacy.

If you tax books, please don't tax books for libraries and teachers. I think it is not fair.

Nathan Jones
Age 9
Dorset

Dear Mr. Mulroney

Stop the tax on books because people love to buy books. They cost too much money now.

Jaime
Dorset

Prime Minister Brian Mulroney

We're writing to tell you we don't think that taxing the books is a good idea. People who don't know how to read won't be able to buy books and learn to read. We love books. Please don't tax them.

Alicia

Brian Mulroney

Some of the reasons why I don't want you to put taxes on books are; we are tryint to teach people how to read, we don't want to pay more, and I don't think that it's fair for people like me because I like books a lot and I don't have that much money.

Kevin Nixon
Dorset

Dear Mr. Mulroney

We don't want you to put tax on books.

It won't work much because people want to save their money to feed their kids.

Do you want to make Canada poor?

I wrote this letter because I do not want Canada poor. If people don't buy books, pwople won't learn to read.

Tax tips to help bolster your return

Report From Ottawa

by Bill Scott, M.P.

Don't forget to apply for the federal sales tax credit!

Even if you did not earn enough money to pay taxes, you can still get a tax refund. To apply for the federal sales tax credit of $100 per adult and $50 per child, you must file a tax return.

You will get the full amount if your income is $16,000 or less. For each $100 of income above that level, the credit is reduced by $5.

Students aged 19 and over are eligible on their own, no matter how much money their parents make, and no matter whether they live at home or on their own.

This year's tax return includes an application form for the new GST Credit, which will be paid four times a year, starting in December 1990.

The credit will be $190 a year for adults, and $100 for children. Single parents will be able to claim the adult credit for one of their children. Single persons who maintain their own household, including single parents, will also be eligible for an additional credit of up to $100 a year. The credit will be reduced by $5 for every $100 of income over $24,800.

If you think you qualify, you should fill out the GST Credit application form to get your first cheque in December.

Some tax credits can be transferred if you cannot use them yourself. The age credit can be claimed by your spouse. The disability credit can be claimed by a spouse or other taxpayer who supports you. Up to $600 of tax credits for tuition and education expenses can be claimed by a spouse, parent or grandparent who supports you.

If you move more than 40 kilometres (25 miles) for a job or to go to school, keep a record of your expenses. You can claim some of those costs at tax time, including transportation and meals, the cost of selling your old home, legal fees for buying a new home, lease cancellation fees, temporary accommodation (e.g. motel) for up to 15 days, and storage.

Don't forget that the cost of your safety deposit box is deductible. Claim the amount as a carrying charge. Fees for the management or safe custody of investments are also deductible.

You are allowed to deduct legal expenses incurred to collect salary or wages. As a result of the April 1989 budget, expenses incurred to obtain a retiring allowance, severance pay, pension or wrongful dismissal award will also be deductible. This measure is retroactive to 1986.

It used to be that you had to be confined to a bed or wheelchair for most of the day to qualify for the disability reduction. In 1986, this was changed to include anyone who is restricted in daily living. Examples include profound deafness, mental retardation, mental illness, blindness, and severe cardio-respiratory failure.

The disability deduction is now a credit that cuts federal taxes by $573. The credit can be transferred to a supporting spouse, parent or grandparent if you cannot use it yourself.

If you feel that you or someone you support may qualify, obtain a Disability Credit Certificate from Revenue Canada. This form must be completed by your doctor, and attached to your tax return.

Beginning in 1989, the cost of part-time attendant care paid by the working disabled is tax-deductible.

The monthly payment for Canada Savings Bonds bought through payroll deductions includes an interest charge. That charge is deductible as a carrying charge. Claim the difference between what was deducted and the value of the bond. For example, if $1,048 was deducted to pay for a $1,000 bond, claim $48.

Around The County Town

by Mary Scott

Call 286-1104

It was a happy Wednesday March 28 when the Beers' family welcomed Mary Wright, Susan's mother, and Anne McCreadie, Susan's sister who arrived from Blantyre Scotland, along with friend Greta Hampsey, to spend a visit here. It just so happened that Mary's 75th birthday was on Sunday, April 1, (no fooling!). The family had arranged a surprise party for her including balloons, streamers, party goodies, friends, relatives, and acquaintances to really wish Mary all good birthday wishes. She was surprised and all enjoyed a 'fun time'. Some of the well wishers included Kay Beers, from Bracebridge and Richard Beers, son of Susan and Bill. Greta, Mary and Anne, we hope our weatherman will provide some nice spring Canadian weather for your visit with us.

There is no sense in throwing out plastic jugs when there are so many things you can do with them. When you need a funnel, cut the jug in half and use the top half for that purpose. If you make your cut more diagonal, your funnel will also be a super scoop for all kinds of things like dog food, potting soil and many other jobs around the house and garden. You can use the bottom half around the shop for storage. Hanging up on the wall by a pegboard makes a handy storage bin. This part of the jug also makes a great place to soak and clean parts and paint brushes. Or you can cut different size holes in this portion, attach it to the wall and you have a handy screw-driver or chisel holder. Try the same trick with larger holes to hold brooms, shovels, mops and rakes. Poke one hole in the top and lots of holes in the lid. When you replace the top you have a quickie watering can. Store left-over paint in these jugs—it's easy to see how much you have left and what colour it is.

These are just a few of the ways plastics can be re-used, rather than filling up our local dumps with them. I am sure you all have many more uses for them. Pass them on and I'll be happy to share them with everyone.

Just heard that some of our 'Snowbirds' have arrived home. Glad to welcome back Don and Edith Burch, Chris and Ed Pergolas, and Ray and Alice Cox. Hope you all enjoyed your holidays.

Jeanne Sears enjoyed a holiday in Jamaica and while there attended the wedding of her grandson Chris to Lisa Ewing. They stayed on to enjoy their honeymoon. On returning to Toronto, Jeanne visited with her family.

There have been 'little thumpety-thumps' around Stan and Marian Hills home this week and the Easter Bunny hasn't arrived. Amanda age 3 and Angie age 2 have arrived for a week to visit with their grandparents while their parents are away on vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Hicks and children, Holly and Emily of Oshawa visited with their Grandmother Bessie Burk of Lochlin on the weekend.

Notes from Staunworth Court

I tell you, with winter I've had it to here. I wish, how I wish, it would all disappear....

Dear Spring, do you listen? "Please come early this year!"

J. MacC B.

The March meeting of our resident's club was held in the lounge with Holly C. presiding. Fern D. informed us of the card party at Hyland Crest. Pres. Holly reminded everyone to bring all business decisions to the meetings to be discussed and voted on.

To the auxiliary of Hyland Crest, we give our many thanks for a lovely afternoon of euchre and bridge with your residents. By 'we', I mean Fern D., Vivian A., Lillian D., Jean, M., and Marg H. The Auxiliary ladies also prepared a delicious lunch.

How glad we are to have Sylvia Howard back with us again. It was our pleasure to share with Sylvia a lovely birthday cake after our euchre game. May you enjoy many more birthdays and continued good health, Sylvia.

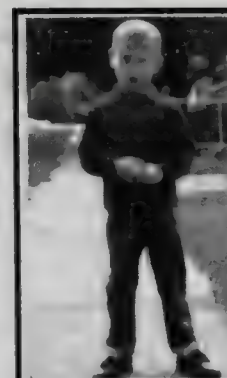

We welcome back Jean and Harry Cowan. Jean informed me that they enjoyed very good health and are glad to be home.

World Day of Prayer was held at Hyland Crest this year. Siiri M. and Marg H. accompanied Fern D. to the meeting. It was a thought provoking service in which Reverend Brian Parker, Anglican minister, spoke of the current struggle for peace in Czechoslovakia, and their determination for freedom and worship. The ladies of the Anglican and Catholic churches of Minden took part in the program and choir. They also prepared a lovely lunch.

Emily P., Jean M. and Marg H. attended the annual skating carnival held at the Minden arena. It was a privilege to watch these young people display their individual accomplishments. They showed such fervour and love for their skating, be it a special category, or the wee Dalmation child who stole the show and proved that Kurt Browning may have to move over, I'm trying.

To the staff, parents, volunteers and youths, we do congratulate you all and hope to see a similar carnival next year. To the Minden folks, let us give them all the support and encouragement we can for another year.

A happy Easter to you all. M.H.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY BRO.

Hi Kids!

Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down, forward, backward and diagonally. They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters.

Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list.

It's as easy as that. Have fun!

Change jars boost bus fund

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

Our Thursday tea party this week was provided and served by the Maple Lake United Church women. Ethel Upton, Eileen Barry and Mrs. Dunn. This tea was the monthly birthday tea, so the ladies brought a beautiful birthday cake as well as a delicious lunch. Those having birthdays were Verna Jarvis and Alfred Richardson. The residents thank these ladies very much for the lunch and birthday cake.

Thursday evening we had Nick Fomenko and a new Kinsman, Peter Martin to call bingo for us. We had a very nice evening and sincerely thank these gentlemen for making it possible.

Of course, Friday afternoon was Happy Hour. Lucille Clarke was expected to provide the entertainment but when she was unable to come, Bill Payne and Charlie Hadley came (on short notice). Bill with singing and guitar and Charlie playing the mandolin. Bill Moore gave them a hand near the finish on the piano. There was a good number out and they were ably served by Ellen and Don Holden and Donna and Jankie. The residents and friends thank those who entertained and the volunteers for a happy time.

Friday night Ina McGuire was taken to the Lindsay hospital as she was very ill. We sincerely hope that she has a speedy recovery. Saturday, Ina's son reported that his mother had revived enough to talk with them, which is encouraging.

Wednesday, Ruby Lewis had her sisters-in-law Ruth and Marge to see her.

May Horsley had Nila and Marion to see her and her brother and his wife, Don and Marge in the morning.

Sunday evening chapel service was conducted by the Rev. John Burgess and Alice Jones played the organ. The attendance was down due to sickness and some visiting friends. The service was enlightening for those who attended.

Monday morning we had fun and fitness. At one o'clock Evelyn Coleman came for bible study. We studied what was recorded about three women. First was Michal, daughter of King Saul who was David's first wife. Saul became jealous of David after David slew Goliath and tried to kill David. Michal was always unhappy like her father because they both rejected God. The second woman was Abigail who married Nabal who owned land and after he died, Abigail became one of David's wives and bore him a son, Chileab. The third was Endor (called the witch of Endor) who was a fortune teller King Saul went to in desperation. She foretells his death and he is beheaded by the Philistines the next day.

As it was the first Monday in April, we had our residents' council. We talked over a few problems and Rheta Jones brought us up to date on what had been accomplished for our betterment under her leadership. The Hyland Crest Auxiliary by placing jars around Minden, gave the bus fund $732.63 and later $172.00 more. The jars produced a total of $904.63. This is only one of the projects these ladies have accomplished for us.

I must apologize to Edna Loucks for not including her name when I wrote who had brought pets to entertain the residents. Edna does so much caring for the pets all year and really helps her daughter Rhonda. Edna had a small dog with her in the show.

Tuesday we had games in the auditorium, euchre and crokinole. There was a volunteer at each table and three residents. The volunteers were there to help anyone who needed assistance. We certainly thanked her 88 birthday with being there.

In the evening, Terry Lynn and Everett Fearrey were here to sing and play their guitars for the residents. We thank them sincerely.

Annie Schultz had her daughter-in-law to see her Tuesday morning.

We are glad to see Ada Lewis back with us again after her stay in the hospital and hope she remains well a long time.

Ada Turrall celebrated her birthday April 3. Congratulations Ada and we hope you have many more. Sunday April 1, Ada celebrated her 88th birthday with her daughter and son-in-law in Hunter Creek Estates, her granddaughter Joyce and David Hunter from Barrie and their 2 sons Shawn, 16, and Darryll, 13.

Also her grandson Allen and Donna Moulton and three children Alanna 16, Drew 13 and Errin 11. They had a lovely family dinner at noon with five great-grandchildren.

Wednesday evening, Pastor Murray was here for a service in the main lounge. The lounge was full and everyone enjoyed themselves. Thank you for coming.

'Stanhope on the Move'

Stanhope Recreation Committee adopts 'moving' logo

The Recreation Committee for the Township of Stanhope is working with the community to provide recreation and leisure activities to make winter and spring, summer and fall, all exciting seasons for its residents and surrounding friends.

These seasons offer many family and individual participation opportunities.

Lots of new exciting events are being planned for this year. The township has appointed a relatively new recreation committee for 1990 and along with these new members have come lots of new ideas and plans for community activities and events to be put into effect over the next few months.

The committee, consisting of Thelda McGuire (chairperson), Frances Bogart (secretary), Fred Gardner and Eleanor Harrison (council representatives), Anna Barry, Valerie Bryant, Becky Durkin, Brigitta Aschenbrenner, Ross Vincent, Elizabeth Bruinenberg, Cheryl McGuckin, George Tipton and Daniel O'Donnell have decided to try to utilize the wonderful parks and the large Stanhope Firefighters' Hall (North Shore Road and Highway 35 just north of Carnarvon) by setting up new clubs and holding more dances and family activities.

The Thursday evening bingo games held every second week at the Stanhope Firefighters' hall at 7:30 p.m. are still a great success and happily attended by a great many of our local people. (As of June 1, bingo will be held weekly for the summer).

The Soda Club is a new club for ages 11 through teenhood, meeting on the first Friday of every month, commencing May 4 at 8 p.m. at the Stanhope Firefighters' hall.

Line Dancing is swinging to a great beat by our ladies on Thursday mornings at 9:30 a.m. in the Firefighters' hall - this is sure to brighten up your spirits and lighten your steps as spring is just around the corner.

Small Fry Frolics - ages 6 to 10 years - watch for our ad and forms to register early for a day of laughter, comradeship, games, crafts, T shirt painting and hot dog luncheon, July 7 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. at the Stanhope Firefighters' hall.

Regulation size tennis courts and basketball equipment are available and open to the public at Stanhope Park on North Shore Road.

A new Seniors' Club is now being formed and will include regular meetings and a variety of activities. If interested, please contact Lotti Ruttan at 754-2770 and George Hamilton at 489-3225.

A variety of Children's Climbing Apparatus and Swings are available at Elvin Johnston Park, Halls Lake and at Stanhope Park, North Shore Road.

Our summer swim program is currently advertising for instructors and getting ready for the coming season.

The summer day camp is currently advertising for assistants and has lots of new ideas for your children this summer.

On the planning board are a variety of activities sure to keep you happy and on the go during the coming months. Forthcoming events for you to enjoy: Pub Nights, dance, darts, laughs and piano sing-alongs; a '50's dance; summer hayride, cornroasts, an afternoon of family fun; our annual Hallowe'en party for Stanhope resident children and seniors; a Hallowe'en dance for adults - start thinking now about your costumes for this hilarious evening of dancing and whatever the spirit dictates; Crafty Critters to be held regularly - bring your latest project and work on it in the company of kindred spirits, learn new techniques, share ideas and chatter over coffee. Join in a winter evening of a hayride, Christmas Caroling and Frolics. There is something for everyone.

Also, the Firefighters sponsor the Stanhope Annual Christmas Party (for resident kids and seniors) as well as the ever-popular Monte Carlo Night at the Stanhope Firefighters' Hall.

Only your participation can make it all work. We need you. Join in all the fun and be part of "Stanhope - on the Move" We have an open ear for new ideas.

Voycey celebrates 80th birthday

March 25, 1990 was a happy day for Ernest Voycey who celebrated his 80th birthday with nineteen family members for brunch at the Cottage Restaurant in West Guilford. After the delicious meal, a poem was read from Roy Rogers (brother-in-law) of Vernon, B.C. about fishing days on Redstone Lake. Daughter Eileen Cockburn read a poem she composed and made a presentation from the family. A number of other family birthdays were also celebrated. Ernie's great-grandson Ryan was 6 the same day as Ernie's birthday, March 23. Also having birthdays were Heather Cockburn and daughter Natalie who will be one year old, and Sherry and Lois Cockburn. Ernie was especially pleased to have daughter Linda Voycey home from her teaching position in Northern Alberta for the occasion, she also has a birthday soon.

The group adjourned from The Cottage to the West Guilford Community Centre where an Open House was held to honour Ernie on 80 years of achievement. Ernie was born and raised in Blairhampton and went to work at a young age in the bush and on the highway to Dorset. In 1936 he married Grace Rogers and built a little house at Eagle Lake. After working at the Cooperage Mill he went to work at lumbering in the Redstone Lake area. Then in 1946, they moved to a farm in Gamebridge, Ontario. He worked on Highway 12 when it was being built and had an accident in the barn when the lantern fell and destroyed the big barn, so a new one had to be built. Then in 1963 he bought one of the discontinued canal houses and moved and renovated it and sold the farm. Later in 1969 he built a house on the Portage Road where they now reside. Ernie worked at carpentry and eventually bought a cottage in 1972 near Redstone Lake which all the family is privileged to use.

During the birthday party, Harry Furness made a presentation of a plaque from Gamebridge Church. Certificates were also received from leaders of government. Ernie cut the beautifully decorated birthday cake done by great-daughter-in-law Sherry Cockburn. Everyone wished Ernie all the best and many more birthdays.

CARD OF THANKS

Thank you to the two wonderful groups of people I work with - the students and staff at Archie Stouffer Elementary School. The students' maturity, enthusiasm and kindness during my pregnancy kept me going. As for the staff members, your everyday caring and support has never been more appreciated. You are all very special people who make our school so great. See you in September.

Mrs. Callaghan

Ivan Ingram Sr.

I want to thank my relatives and friends for the gifts, cards and phone calls which I received on my birthday.

IN MEMORIAM

MARTIN, Victor. In loving memory of my father who passed away April 6, 1988.

It's been two years since you passed away
There will always be a heart-ache
And often a silent tear.

But always precious memories
Of the days when you were here.

I hold you close within my heart
And there you will remain
To walk with me throughout my life
Until we meet again.

Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by daughter Kathy.

Play it safe DRIVE CAREFULLY!
